

John Kanaka - traditional 19th century long-haul shanty used at the halyards for hoisting the sails of the whaling ships
 English-speaking sailors had trouble pronouncing the names of Polynesian sailors and called them 'kanaka' which means 'human' in Hawaiian (or the people)

Intro: [C] [G] (last line verse)

I [C] thought I heard the [G] Old Man [C] say - huh
 John Kanaka naka, [G] tu-lai [C] e
 To-[C]day, today is a [G] sailing [C] day - huh
 [C] John Kanaka naka, [G7] tulai [C] e

Chorus:

[C] Tulai e, [Am]/ o-o-o-oh, [C] tulai e
 [C] John Kanaka naka, [G] tulai [C] e

We'll [C] work tomorrow, but [G] not to-[C]day - huh
 John Kanaka naka, [G] tu-lai [C] e
 To-[C]day, today is a hol-[G]iday - huh
 [C] John Kanaka naka, [G] tulai [C] e

Chorus

We're [C] outward bound from [G] Frisco [C] Bay - huh
 John Kanaka naka, [G] tu-lai [C] e
 We're [C] bound away at the [G] break of [C] day - huh
 [C] John Kanaka naka, [G] tulai [C] e

Chorus

It's [C] one more heave and [G] that will [C] do - huh
 John Kanaka naka, [G] tu-lai [C] e
 For [C] we're the crew to [G] pull her [C] through - huh
 [C] John Kanaka naka, [G] tulai [C] e

Chorus

Oh, [C] haul away, oh, [G] haul a-[C]way!
 John Kanaka naka, [G] tu-lai [C] e
 Oh, [C] haul away, an' [G] make your [C] pay!
 [C] John Kanaka naka, [G] tulai [C] e

Chorus

Outro: (a Capella) John Kanaka naka, tulai e
